C 3.2:

Taking a census is important, interesting work.

You can help take the 1986 Census of Central Los Angeles County by becoming a temporary U.S. Census employee for a few weeks, between fall 1985 and summer 1986.

Census work is interesting and important to your community and to the nation.

The 1986 Census of Central Los Angeles County is part of the planning program for the national 1990 count.

Jobs are temporary.

All Census jobs are temporary and last from three to eight weeks. You'll be working with other people from your community.

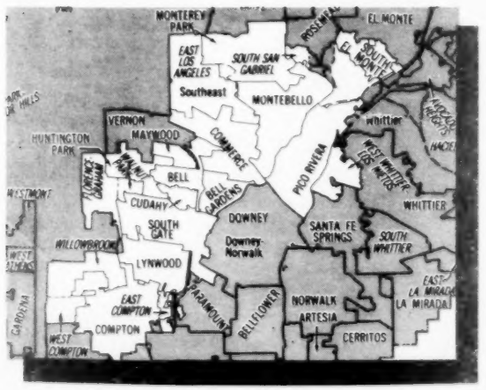
Most census jobs require you to work outdoors in city neighborhoods. Office jobs also are available.

You'll be paid for training.

Once you meet job qualifications, pass a written test, and are hired, you'll undergo one or more days of training. You will be paid for this training.

The job applicant test checks your reading ability, skills in reading maps, ability to do basic arithmetic, and how well you follow instructions.

Census Enumeration Area



Your hours can be flexible.

Depending on the type of job you are hired to do, your daily work schedule usually will be eight hours, but there is flexibility. Part-time positions are available.

Most census employees work evenings and Saturdays.

How you can qualify for a census job.

These are the basic requirements to become a census worker:

- You must be at least 16 years old.
- You must be a U.S. citizen.
- You must have a high school diploma, its equivalent, or comparable work experience.
- You must pass the written census test given all job applicants.
- For certain outdoor jobs, you must be able to climb stairs and walk a number of city blocks.
- You also must hear well and have good eyesight to read the small print on census forms.

The Bureau of the Census is an Equal Opportunity Employer.
